BALTIMORE UNIVERSITY

SCHOOL OF LAW.

The next session of this school opens on October 3, 1892.

A calendar of lectures, examinations, &c., is printed on the back of the student's card, which is furnished at matriculation. There will be a short vacation from December 22, 1892, to January 2, 1893, inclusive.

LOCATION, &c.

The climate of Baltimore is unexceptionable; its society is of the finest, and the facilities it affords for general culture are unsurpassed. Its free libraries, such as the Pratt, the Peabody, &c., are among the largest and best selected of their kind in the country.

The lectures will be delivered in Brown Hall, of Baltimore University, which is conveniently located in the centre of the city.

LECTURES AT NIGHT.

There are eight lectures a week in the course. The lectures are all delivered between the hours of 8 and 10 P. M.

This school offers special inducements to young men who desire to employ themselves in business during the day, by reason of the fact that its lectures are delivered altogether in the evening hours.

FEES AND EXPENSES.

The course is divided into two branches—junior and senior—covering a period of two years.

The fees are seventy-five dollars a year, when the courses are taken separately, one hundred dollars for the entire course when taken in one year. Students may attend all the lectures the first year and stand examination for the junior branch only, reserving the privilege of attending next year free of charge, and entering the senior examination. The matriculation fee is five dollars. The above fees are payable on matriculation. The diploma fee is twenty dollars, payable on graduation.

EXAMINATIONS, &c.

No preliminary examination is required for matriculation, but the student is expected to be well grounded in the fundamental principles of an English education.

The student is expected to stand daily examinations on the lectures, as well as such portions of the text-books as are especially assigned for reading. The intermediate and final examinations will cover the entire field of the lectures and text books.

A special feature of the course at this school is the frequent reference to statutory modifications of the common law in the various States of the Union. The aim is to present a general view of the science of jurisprudence, with reference not merely to its growth by judicial exposition, but to the principles which have been engrafted upon it by positive enactments. Thus, it is hoped, while drilling the student thoroughly in the theory of his profession, to equip him for practice in any section of the United States.

Independent thought is developed by encouraging criticism on the reasons given for particular applications of the law, and by tracing analogies and contrasts between the facts of the cases cited.

THE MOOT COURT.

This meets once a week during the session. Students are given a month's notice in advance of the questions to be argued and the positions which they are expected to maintain. Cases are selected for argument with special reference to the topics treated in the lectures. Students are thus enabled to familiarize themselves with the practical duties of their profession in the preparation and trial of causes. The faithful discharge of Moot Court duties is a condition of graduation.

LIBRARY, &C.

The Legislature of Maryland has placed at the disposal of this institution for the exclusive use of its students a complete set of all Maryland law books, comprising statutes, reports, etc., which are always accessible during the library hours.

The extensive collection of books belonging to the Law Library Association of the Baltimore Bar is also open to our students. Here may be found at all times the latest editions of text-books and all the reports, English, Federal and State, as soon as printed. The ten courts of Baltimore city afford the students ample opportunity to observe the details of actual practice and the conduct of cases.

CORRESPONDENCE COURSE.

This course has been established for the benefit of those who wish to acquire a knowledge of the law without leaving their homes. The fee for the correspondence course is fifty dollars, payable in advance. Portions of text-books are prescribed for study, and as soon as the student announces his readiness for examination he is furnished with a series of questions on the subjects covered by his reading. If his written answers to these questions justify it, a "certificate of proficiency" is awarded to him. From the nature of the case, no diploma can be conferred in this course. The advantage which it offers is the avoidance of desultory and unnecessary reading, and the preparation in the shortest possible time for examination in court or a more minute and extended university course. The student who deals fairly with himself and the faculty will find no difficulty in securing admission to the bar through court examinations, or in entering the highest class in any of our law schools. Checks and money-orders for fees, and all other communications, should be sent to the Dean. Students may enter this course at any time during the year. Address,

JAMES T. RINGGOLD, Dean,
Keyser Building, Baltimore.

ADMISSION TO THE BAR.

By special act of the Legislature of Maryland, the diploma of this school will admit to practice in the highest Court of the State without examination at the bar. This admission, by comity of States qualifies for practice elsewhere.

NO DISTINCTION OF SEX.

Women will be admitted to this school on the same terms as men. The faculty pledges itself to use its best efforts to have the word "male" stricken from the list of statutory requirements for attorneys at the next session of the Maryland Legislature, as has recently been done elsewhere, thus placing our State in line with those which encourage to the utmost the development of the race without regard to sex. The Maryland Legislature will meet prior to the graduation of the next junior class.

ALUMNI ASSOCIATION, &c.

A spirit of devotion to "alma mater" is fostered by the Alumni Association, the base ball club, House of Commons, &c., connected with the university.

During the session the "Baltimore University Journal" will be open to students and afford an opportunity for rendering permanent the results of original research.

COMMENCEMENT.

The annual commencement for the session of 1891-2 took place in Harris' Academy of Music, at 12 M. March 31, 1892. Hon. Charles E. Hooker, Member of Congress from Mississippi, delivered the annual address. Fielder C. Slingluff, Esq., also addressed the graduates in conferring the degrees.

At the next commencement orations will be delivered by two members of the class, one selected by the faculty and one by the class.

The annual banquet will follow the commencement.
